PREFACE.

To the list of names of residents of New Britain in 1799, should be added that of Rev. John Smalley, pastor of the church, who by virtue of his office was exempt from taxation.

The writer spent ten years or more of his early life in New Britain, attended the public schools there, and was acquainted with many of its inhabitants, among them descendants of those whose names appear in these pages.

His apology, if one is necessary, for the publication of this old manuscript which has been in his possession for many years, is, that a few persons may be interested in the names of those who resided in the town over one hundred and ten years ago, and the list will be of value to genealogists and others who care for ancestry, it therefore seems worth while to preserve it in printed form.
